Some hotels, presenting itself as four star category, have luxury lobbies, polite and friendly staff, a spacious restaurant and ample free parking. But the core business, providing lodging, is, I am sorry to day, a bit Spartan. Basic provisions as a clean room, a good bed and a spacious bathroom are OK, but those extras to be expected from a four star hotel are absent. Here Van Der Valk shines. The luxury lobby, the friendly staff, the ample free parking are there. But the room has also the four star feeling; clean and spacious, with a comfortable bed and a gleaming spacious bathroom. But those small four star extras are also there. A rack for the suitcases, a safety deposit box a fridge and a coffee machine, which are glaringly absent in other four star hotels I visited in the Netherlands. The only small remarks I can make is that I am no fan of the shallow wash basin in the bathroom and my regret that instead of an electric kettle Van Der Valk has opted for a capsule coffee maker. Van Der Valk is my favourite hotel chain in the Netherlands. I forgot to mention the buffet breakfast with a huge selection of food and drink. Not only is Van Der Valk Hengelo a true four star hotel, also good deals can be scored when in the loop with the offerings of this hotel chain.
